

Announcing the International Network for School Attendance 2021 Conference

We are inviting presentations

for INSA's second annual conference, hosted in Melbourne
13 -14 October, but taking place online.

The theme of the conference is COLLABORATION.

If you are an academic, practitioner, school, or parent/young people's group working in the field of non-attendance, we'd like to invite you to share your research or best practice, and its impact, with an international community. All we need at this stage is a 250 word abstract or summary. This will be reviewed by our INSA Conference Committee in order to ensure we have representation from across the world, and across different professional groups. We also ask that you hold the relevant conference date in your diary (13 October for Australia/Pacific time zone, 14 October for European time zone), in the event that you are invited to present.

The deadline for submissions is 16th July 2021.

If you have any questions, please contact info@insa.network.

You can submit your abstract/summary and details now by clicking here.

For more information, please go to the Conference Site <https://insa.network/conference/>

Keynote Speakers are already confirmed:

Hedy Chang, Director, Attendance Works, USA

Megan Gilmour, Co-founder & CEO Missing School, Australia

David Heyne, Co-founder INSA & Leiden University, The Netherlands

Chris Varney, Founder & Chief Enabler, ICAN Network, Australia.

INSA is the International Network for School Attendance. It exists for all those who wish to promote school attendance and respond to school attendance problems. It aims to compile, generate, evaluate, and disseminate information, assessment, and intervention strategies. For more information about the organisation and how to become a member, visit www.insa.network.